History:

Forest Hills Country Club officially opened the clubhouse and the 18-hole course called “The Championship” in December 1964. The original course architect was Chick Adams but was later fine tuned by golf course designers Dick Nugent and Keith Foster. As recently as 2011 the greens were re-seeded with the new Bentgrass variety A1A4 and an advanced drainage system was installed. These upgrades provide an ideal putting surface that is very weather tolerant for the Midwest temperature fluctuations. The Championship course is challenging as it is well protected with hazards, trees and out of bounds.

Forest Hills is also home to a 9 hole course referred to as “The Valley”. The current layout of this course was designed by Keith Foster. This course is ideal for the beginner golfer as it offers beautiful multi-tiered greens and wide open fairways and is a great practice area for the low handicappers.

Forest Hills Country Club has hosted several tournaments of note, including the LPGA Michelob/Heartland Classic from 1994-1999, regional qualifying for the US Open and US Senior Amateur as well as various other regional and local events.
